

Carol Levine got this email today. It looks real, until you read it....

If you get this, or something like it, delete it. No harm no foul.

No matter what, do not click on the links in the email.

-----Original Message-----

From: Wells Fargo Online

To: Member Service

Sent: Mon, Mar 13, 2017 2:01 pm

Subject: New Security Message From Wells Fargo.

Wells Fargo Online®

For security reasons, you cannot logon to online banking.

For your protection, Wells Fargo is introducing the new Security routine maintenance to serve our customers for a better and secure online service against any fraudulent attempt.

Due to this recent maintenance, you are requested to update your banking information to validate your account. Please be aware that failure to validate your account might lead to your account been suspended or de-activated.

Click here to Validate Online Banking Information

For your security, you won't be able to gain access to your accounts until you've done this. We will send you an email notifying you that your online service profile is up to date.

Save automatically

Open a Way2Save®
Savings account
in minutes

Start Now

Member FDIC

Reduce your debt

Learn how a Personal Loan and tools can be used to help consolidate debt into one fixed monthly payment

Learn More